because cancer treatment is constantly changing,” Dr. Morrow says. As a result, Memorial Sloan Kettering has the experience to keep up with newest standards of care – and in fact helps to create the standards in many cases.

Breast cancer surgeon Alexandra Heerdt adds that while it may be easy to find treatment information on the Internet and elsewhere, it’s the Memorial Sloan Kettering specialists who were actually integral to defining the best approaches for different scenarios.

“There are lots of options for breast cancer management,” concludes Dr. Morrow. “It’s important that you understand what all of your choices are, and that you are making the best choice both for your overall health, and for your peace of mind.”
