A Guide to High Fiber Foods

This information explains what fiber is. It also lists foods high in fiber, the serving size, and the amount of fiber in a serving.

What is fiber and why is it healthy?

Fiber is an important part of your diet because it can help you:

- Have regular bowel movements (poop) and prevent constipation (having fewer bowel movements than usual).
- Lower your cholesterol (a waxy type of fat your body makes).
- Lower your risk for health issues. Some examples are diabetes, heart disease, and obesity (having a high, unhealthy amount of body fat).

Plant-based foods are the best sources of fiber. Fruits, vegetables, whole grains, cereals, legumes (such as kidney and black beans), nuts, and seeds give you the fiber you need.

How much fiber do I need in a day?

Before adding more fiber into your diet, talk with your healthcare provider about the amount that’s right for you. Your fiber needs are based on your daily caloric need (number of calories your body needs in a day). Females usually need about 25 grams of fiber in a day. Males need about 35 grams of fiber in a day.
