I began my career at Memorial Sloan Kettering as a registered nurse on the Bone Marrow Transplant unit. For the next five years I worked as a clinical nurse and provided care to people undergoing bone marrow and stem cell transplantation. During this time I also served on several committees designed to improve the care and safety of patients, as well as nursing documentation. Since I received my master's degree as a nurse practitioner in 2010, I have continued to work with the Bone Marrow Transplant Service, providing advanced care and education to our patients.
