Coping with Cancer-Related Body Image for Young Adults

Cancer can change how you feel about your body - and you're not alone in that. This session offers a chance to learn how cancer can impact body image and identity, and to connect with other young adults who get it. Led by oncology social workers, the session includes helpful information, space to reflect, and opportunities for discussion. Whether you just want to listen or you're open to sharing, you're welcome here. Consultation is required before joining.
