About Flector® Patch

This information describes Flector patch, including how to put it on, guidelines to follow while you're wearing it, and side effects to look out for.

About Flector patch

Flector patch (diclofenac epolamine topical patch) is a pain medicine. It helps ease pain and inflammation (swelling) in a small area of your body, such as from a sprain, strain, bruise, or arthritis. It contains a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drug (NSAID).

Flector patch is put on your skin. This means your body absorbs the NSAID through your skin and the medicine goes right to the area where the pain is. Other areas of your body don't get as much of the medicine.

Before you put on Flector patch

- Make sure your skin is clean. Wash off any dirt, lotion, or moisturizer on the area where you will put on Flector patch. They will keep the patch from sticking to your skin.

- If the area where you're putting Flector patch needs to be washed, wash it with a mild soap, rinse the area with water, and pat it completely dry.
- If you have hair on the area where you will put Flector patch, clip the hair with scissors. Do not shave the area.

How to put on Flector patch

- Do not put Flector patch on damaged skin, such as where there's a burn, wound, infection, rash, or eczema.
- Do not put the Flector patch on an area that has received radiation.

To put on Flector patch:

1. Take off the clear film on the patch.
2. Put the patch on the area where you have the most pain.
3. Press the patch firmly with your hand for about 20 to 30 seconds. It needs to stick completely to your skin.
4. Wash your hands.

Each package contains more than 1 Flector patch. Be sure to reseal the package after you open it. This will keep the remaining patches from drying out.

Store the patches at room temperature. Do not put them in the refrigerator or expose them to heat.

After you put on Flector patch

- Keep the patch dry. Do not shower or take a bath with the patch on.
- Do not put a warm or cold pack over the patch.
- Do not let the patch to come into contact with your eyes. If it does, flush your eye with water right away and call your doctor.
- If the patch starts to peel off, tape the edges down.

Use only the number of patches your doctor prescribed.
