About Private Duty Nurses and Companions

This information explains the role of a private duty nurse or companion, and how you can hire one at MSK.

Private duty nurses and companions

Private duty nurses

At MSK, private duty nurses are registered nurses (RNs) who are licensed to practice nursing in New York State. Private duty nurses:

- Help you take your medication.
- Help give you your treatment.
- Change your dressing (bandages).
- Tell your doctor and nurse how you're doing.

Private duty companions

Companions are nursing aides who completed a nursing health training program to help you with activities of daily living. This can include help with bathing, or changing your bed sheets.

Both provide private duty services. Private duty nurses and companions are separate from your MSK nurses. They don't work for MSK, but they must follow MSK's policies and procedures.

Private duty services

You may need private duty services if:

- You had a major surgery or procedure.
- You're confused at times. Some medications may cause this.
- You're at risk for falling.
