Young Adults Are Getting Colorectal and Gastrointestinal Cancers: How MSK is Changing the Future of Their Care.

Join Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center's (MSK) first digital summit for young adults, healthcare providers, and allies affected by colorectal and gastrointestinal cancers.

This digital summit brings together MSK experts in research, treatment, lifestyle, and mental health. They focus on caring for the unique needs of young adults with these types of cancer. You will learn about:

- New research and treatment options at MSK.
- Why MSK researchers are studying the gut microbiome, the community of tiny organisms living naturally in our bodies.
- When to get screened and understanding your risk.
- Financial toxicity (problems related to the costs of cancer care).

- Fertility, mental health, and lifestyle issues affecting young adults.
- What it's like living with cancer as a young adult. Hear from a group of people getting care at MSK.
