This program will include SAM Credits.*
COURSE OVERVIEW
This course is designed to give a current review of thoracic pathology with clinical and radiologic correlations. The course will run for two and one half days and will consist of a series of presentations with some multidisciplinary sessions regarding lung cancer, interstitial lung disease and non-neoplastic lung disease in cancer patients. The 2015 WHO Classification of Lung Tumors and 2013 ATS/ERS Classification of Idiopathic Interstitial Pneumonias will be presented. Most of the speakers will be expert lung pathologists, but there will also be clinical and radiologic presentations by well-known thoracic clinicians and radiologists. The presentations will illustrate the importance of a multidisciplinary approach to solving difficult problems in thoracic disease. Self Assessment Module Credits (SAMs) will be available.

OBJECTIVES
By the end of this course the participant should:
- Have a grasp of current concepts in lung, pleural and mediastinal pathology
- Understand the importance of correlation between clinical, radiologic and pathologic data in diagnosis and management of interstitial lung disease and pulmonary vasculitis
- Know the significance of lung biopsy and multidisciplinary correlation for the diagnosis of non-neoplastic lung disease in acute lung injury and in cancer patients
- Comprehend the most recent histologic concepts in lung cancer diagnosis and classification including problematic issues related to molecular pathology and radiologic correlations
- Realize the important issues in molecular targeted therapy for lung cancer
- Have a practical understanding of differential diagnosis for mediastinal and pleural lesions
- Understand the usefulness of cytology in pulmonary, pleural and mediastinal diagnoses
